

The Paydirt wines represent the art of discovery, the act of going for broke, and the idea that risking it all brings about the greatest reward.

Patrick McNeil first brought the idea of Paydirt to Paso Robles in 2008. McPrice 'Mac' Myers was quickly identified as one of the most progressive winemakers in the area, and his respect for old world practices and new world wines made him the perfect fit for this very-California project.

2015 Going For Broke
